Situation:

Rheinhausen is, since 1974, a part of Duisburg with a population of over 77,000.

Like Duisburg as a whole it is a very multicultural and missionary challenging place. Due to historical reasons (industrial action in the 80s) there is a strong left-wing scene here, to whose socially committed wing we have good contact, as well as to two schools.

The Free Protestant church of Rheinhausen has a new focus. The church leadership has a high average age, as do the members and for the last three years they have consciously made their focus social and missionary work in their community. All of them are very willing to share new experiences with people from different cultures. The atmosphere is very loving, which has recently led to more people attending the service, including younger people. English translation is offered.
